My faith is in the younger generation, the modern generation, out of them will come my workers!

Fortunately for India, which boasts of having the world's largest youth population, the reality is far more optimistic than the stereotyped observations. The 150th birth centenary celebrations of Swami Vivekananda was an eye opener in many respects. As one travelled across the length and breadth of the country, rural areas, metros and even metros, the zest and enthusiasm of the youth who thronged the venues in schools, colleges and universities, organises events, patiently listened to speeches on the saint patriot and encouraged social work to mark the occasion proved once again that in their commitment to a strong and prosperous motherland, the Indian youth were second to none.

It was the Indian youth in the so-called self-centred cities such as Delhi who took to the streets in lakhs protesting the brutal assault on a young woman Nirbhaya. Across the country, one also saw thousands cutting across caste, class, language and religious differences and coming together against that cancer called corruption, which is eating into the very vitals of the country. They had no selfish motive whatsoever. Many left their jobs, many took leave, others absented from their classes. They all had only one mission - to make India a country of their dreams and a better place to live in.

And in the subsequent general elections, they voted for change. They did not vote on narrow, parochial or sectarian lines. They voted for good governance. They wanted an end to corruption, better job opportunities, better roads and other infrastructural structure, which have been denied to them even decades after independence.

Unfortunately, in some parts of the country, there are attempts by anti-national forces aided and abetted by foreigners to mislead the youth and lead them into a futile and disastrous path of violence. These forces are taking advantage of the growing disillusionment among the youth over prevailing corruption, unemployment etc. In Punjab, attempts are on from across the border to pump in drugs and turn the youth population into addicts. This is similar in North East.

Any attempt to discriminate against our citizens from any part of the country based on his or her caste, gender, language, facial features, religion etc has to be condemned in the strongest possible terms but we should also nip in the bud efforts by vested interests to project even our citizens from even the downtown, considered the hub of separatists, were demanding better schools and facilities such as smart classes.

It is important that our media, particularly the electronic media, play a constructive role in projecting a positive image of our youth living in sensitive zones.

areas of the country.

It is important to observe that is our young women too are marching shoulders to shoulders with their male counterparts in taking up the cudgels. The Delhi Police Women parade this year, for example, was the 72nd edition of the parade and was the first women police parade organised by the Delhi Police. Similar parades by the previous Governments, the Modi Government has envisaged to take up the cudgels. Women police on sent across the message that they were second to none and Indian women were brave and bold to take up the on the whirlwind of certain unfortunate incidents which have hogged the national headlines.

Women are also doing exceedingly well in important national level examinations including the civil services. Some of the leading candidates who appeared in the civil services examination this year from the women category are today women. Thanks to the NDA Government's proactive campaign to attract more women to the Armed Forces, the number of applications for various branches of the Indian Armed Forces by women have seen an increase.
